RE: Ordinance 2016-01, An Ordinance Approving Correia Single-Family Residential (R-1) Local Option Zoning District, and amending KPB 21.46.040 (Mayor)

This ordinance would approve the formation of a Single-Family Residential (R-1) Local Option Zoning District (LOZ).

A petition has been submitted by property owners of nine parcels for the formation of an R-1, Single-Family Residential local option zoning district (LOZ), which is three-fourths of the 12 parcels within the proposed district. Pursuant to KPB 21.44.010, property owners may petition the assembly for greater restriction on land use than otherwise provided in Title 21 of the KPB Code. The proposed LOZ is consistent with Goal 6.5 of the 2005 KPB Comprehensive Plan which is to maintain the freedom of property owners in rural areas of the borough to make decisions and control use of their private land.

Attached is the LOZ petition form submitted by the residents. Also attached are maps showing the boundaries of the proposed district, the lots sizes within the proposed district, parcels whose owners have signed the petition, the current land use, the land ownership, and information sheets that were circulated with the petition.

KPB 21.44.060 states, "The assembly shall approve, disapprove, or modify the proposed local option zoning district. The assembly reserves the right to disapprove a local option zoning district in its legislative capacity notwithstanding the district's meeting the criteria of this chapter."

On January 25, 2016, the KPB Planning Commission will hold a public hearing and make a recommendation regarding the formation of the R-1 district. That recommendation will be reported to the Assembly.

Thank you for your consideration of this ordinance.
